Adeline Community History Project includes an intergenerational community-building project that connects local youth, elders, and Cal students. Youth will learn how to research and collect oral histories of community elders to preserve and celebrate the rich cultural history of the Adeline Community in South Berkeley. These stories will be publicly accessible for generations to come.	City of Berkeley	UC Berkeley, History-Social Science Project	Arts and Culture (Community Service)	$	15,000
Administration of Justice Program will foster positive relationships between Berkeley High School 11th and 12th graders, the Berkeley Police Department, and the UC Berkeley Police Department and will help prepare students for a career in Public Safety. Modeled after the existing Fire Science Academy course, this new course will include visits to both Police Departments, offer ridealongs, and lectures or demonstrations on all facets of police work and is designed to provide a pathway to Berkeley City College and UC Berkeley. Bay Area Book Festival (BABF) promotes literacy and brings the diverse Berkeley community together around the experience of reading. The inaugural BABF (2015) was a "soaring success" and the Fund will support another year of 100 indoor literary sessions featuring 300 top authors from around the world (including UC Berkeley faculty), extensive children's programming, and 50,000+ attendees.	Bay Area Book Festival	Berkeley Art Museum and Pacific Film Archive	Arts and Culture (Community Service)	$	20,000
Berkeley Arts Providers School Partnership has begun to identify disparities in the BUSD afterschool arts program. With the Fund's support, this partnership will implement a plan to address programmatic and personnel gaps. Collaborating to create a sustainable system that benefits students in afterschool programs, partners include campus, civic, and community arts stakeholders seeking to enhance equity, equality, and the quality of BUSD afterschool arts programs. Curved Blackboard Curved Blackboard provides an opportunity for gifted low-income students of color, English language learners, and girls to learn about the solar system by engaging them in a process of scientific inquiry. Participants interview imminent scientists, experiment with creative ways to display findings through animation and coding, and will produce a full-length planetarium film.	Berkeley Unified School District	Academic Talent Development Program (ATDP), Graduate School of Education	Education (Community Service)	$	10,000
English Learners as Writers project will address the language-learning needs of long-term BUSD middle school English learners (LTELs) through a three-week summer writing camp. The writing camp will also provide professional development opportunities for BUSD teachers of LTELs.	Berkeley Unified School District	Bay Area Writing Project, Graduate School of Education	Education (Community Service)	$	15,000
Equal Read will work with UCB's BUILD and BUSD to support Berkeley's 2020 Vision goal of reading proficiency by third grade for all learners. By providing Equal Read Classroom, teacher professional development, BUILD mentor training, an identity dialogue guide and diverse books and author visits, this partnership will create more identity-safe learning environments for emergent readers, which is proven to increase engagement and achievement overall.	Equal Read	UC Berkeley Public Service Center	Education (Community Service)	$	15,000
Equity for Black Children through Kindergarten Readiness will develop and implement a participant-oriented program evaluation consisting of four components: 1) process, 2) implementation, 3) outcome, and 4) impact. Our program acknowledges the role of individual, internalized and institutional racism on outcomes for black families. Our goals are to decrease stress associated with institutional racism, increase resiliency and empowerment, and create a replicable tool and process for evaluation.	Healthy Black Families Inc.	UC Berkeley School of Public Health, Division of Community Health and Human Development	Education (Community Service)	$	15,000
Growing Summer Reading: A City-wide Partnership to Prevent Summer Slide will provide literacy intervention for students who will benefit the most. BUSD will partner with BUILD and the City of Berkeley to provide books and literacy mentors for students in summer care programs. And students in the Playground Program will be given access to appropriately leveled books.	Berkeley Unified School District	Public Service Center, BUILD	Education (Community Service)	$	10,000
